NEW DELHI: Sharp cut down the number of coronavirus patients by more than 50% in the capital as the total patients here reached the 200 mark and sustained their low level for two days. According to a top official of the New Delhi Municipal Corporation (NDMC), as of February 21, the number of COVID-19 patients was recorded as 206, down 50% from February 16, when the number was recorded as 514. The jump in the number of positive patients witnessed in the first week of the month may be attributed to the community spread of the disease as the number of infected persons among domestic help and service industry workers swelled. The government has now directed the government-owned and located multi-speciality hospital, Pragati Nihalani Medical College (PNMCH) located in Saket to start sending all COVID-19 positive cases to RML Hospital. At least two officials of the hospital confirmed the decision. Though the government had earlier directed the private hospitals to take charge of all positive cases, it had failed to act on the directive as many of these were located in the NCR. However, the government is now focusing on taking care of all positive cases in these private hospitals. Top health officials of the government now feel that they have every reason to believe that the number of new cases will be coming down in the coming days. Health minister Harsh Vardhan said on Friday that the condition of patients in Delhi was quite "stable". After travel restrictions were put on foreign nationals in March, the number of new cases per day was around a minimum of 10-20 persons and not more than a single positive person per day was declared who had tested positive for the disease. "The number of daily positive cases has not been increasing. The level of coronavirus positive cases is decreasing," said Dr Sanjeev Gupta, a national-level expert on COVID-19. b7e8fdf5c8
