Parthiban. The film's score and soundtrack were composed by the director himself. He wrote the story and dialogues with Uma Thupari. The film stars Shankar Nag and Pooja Gandhi in the lead roles. Pooja Gandhi was later replaced by Aishwarya Das in the last scene. The film opened in May 2008 to positive reviews and an average box office collection of 2.35 crore. Shankar Nag and Pooja Gandhi's highly successful pairing ran into trouble when the crew started saying that they felt very uncomfortable with the chemistry between the lead actors. Pooja Gandhi received very negative reviews for her performance and was criticized for her attitude towards the film. Shankar Nag and R. Parthiban removed her from the film and recast the role with Aishwarya Das. However, her scenes weren't deleted from the film and the actress was heavily criticized in the media for her wrong attitudes towards the film and the film industry. The film does have a sequel titled Vara Vaa (2009) which itself has two sequels: Gangotri (2012) and Kula Gowravayathu (2013). Vara Vaa is the second film of the duo and it was released in theatres on 19 May 2008. It released on DVD on 10 May 2009 and has been dubbed in Tamil and Hindi as well. Synopsis: The film takes a critical look at the way men and women are living in the city. The film shows the travails of the characters when they get married. The film is a good example of how the leading actress started affecting the tone of a film and depending on the role, became a stone throwing terrorist. After becoming a leading actress, she lost her intellect. Plot Geeta, a young woman, goes with her friend Argha to a wedding venue. On
