Its main advantage is that it is very easy to carry out installation and update a lot of packages from various repositories (Fedora, Debian etc.) This computer will remain idle for a long time. How to spend time without consuming electricity? Why not try to catch fish with a computer? Sorry, the main idea of an exercise is not to catch fish, but you can run it in the background. It is not a special skill, but it is an interesting experiment. But what can you use for fishing? CPU; GPU; Camera; Microphone; Touchscreen; Lights; Switch; And many more... If you're looking for simplicity, then you have been warned. You will need to open many ports in the router, because the CPU, GPU and other hardware devices will talk to each other over the Internet. On my computer, the following ports were opened: TCP 22 (telnet); UDP 53 (DNS); TCP 80, 83, 443 (Web server); TCP 5223 (Raspberry Pi Camera API); TCP 5652 (Raspberry Pi GPIO API); TCP 23; TCP 5940; TCP 22; TCP 80, 443; TCP 443; TCP 80; TCP 3478 (DeviceControl); TCP 21 (FTP); TCP 82157476af
