I am unable to download steam_api.dll. A: I would be willing to bet that you're browsing a site that automatically downloads those or other bits of code before letting you view it. If so, stop that. You're opening your computer up to all sorts of exploits and getting nastier things downloaded into your computer if you do that. A: 1) Download the steam_api.dll file 2) Place it on your desktop. 3) Locate the file using Windows Explorer (right click on Desktop and select Explore) 4) Double-click it. Downloading the file will install Steam API DLL on your PC. If you get any error messages as shown below, make sure you have provided the correct location and permissions for the file. If you try to load the DLL by double-clicking on it, it will appear as an empty file. That's because it will still be installing. Don't close the program that is executing the file install. You will be back at the Windows Explorer screen if you close it. Q: Hibernate sessionFactory/nHibernate DataTransformer - mixed strategy I've heard that using Hibernate's session factory and DataTransformers is a bad idea because it's open to SQL injection. This question is almost duplicate of this one, but I'm trying to understand whether there are any issues in mixing strategy and strategyless strategy using DataTransformers. In my case I'm trying to have custom DataTransformer for parsing FK / LOB data to "regular" tables. Because I've seen in real examples that when certain columns are nullable (that a normal FK I don't need an empty string in the join table, I'm trying to have the DataTransformer to avoid empty strings. With strategyless strategies it's easy, but for strategy I don't know where to start. Can someone recommend an example, or explanation of the drawbacks and issues that could arise from using strategy and strategyless in same session factory and mapper? A:
